NATIONAL PROHIBITION A FINANCIAL CRISIS

MEANS DECREASE OF QUARTER BILLION IN GOVERNMENT'S REVENUE.

RESULT IN HEAVY TAXES

Government Would Have to Raise This Vast Sum By Other Taxes.

The New York Times editorial of April 23, 1914, on the question of national prohibition, says: "The direct income of the government from the sale of liquor is about $100,000,000 a year. The indirect income, in the form of taxes on the sale of liquor, is about $200,000,000 a year. The total income of the government from the sale of liquor is about $300,000,000 a year. The government would have to raise this vast sum by other taxes if prohibition were enacted." The editorial goes on to say that the government would have to raise this vast sum by other taxes if prohibition were enacted.
